Many factors come into play in formulating the design solution. There is the space itself, its dimensions and construction, with its potential and its limitations. There is how the space will be used, for work or leisure, entertainment or worship, healing or learning. There is the meaning of the space, what it signifies, be it power, authority, security, wisdom, achievement, playfulness or serenity. There are practical considerations, like ease of access, amount of light, acoustics, seating and places to store or set things down. There are health and safety considerations, attention to special needs and more.

Residential and Commercial interior design focuses on the design, professional design team coordination, planning, budgeting, specifying/purchasing and furnishings installation of private homes, including the specialty areas of the kitchen, bath, home theatre, home office, and custom product design.
